Investigations

In the current climate we continually find that police are not in a position to conduct an enquiry to the satisfaction of the victim. We undertake investigations, sometimes in parallel with the police, to investigate the crime and provide evidence which can be used in both criminal and private prosecutions.

Investigations carried out by Surelock have included suspicious death, high value art thefts, commercial and domestic burglaries, fraud, blackmail, fire, assaults, and employee defecation/malpractices.

With the assistance of forensic evidence and diligent enquiries both in the UK and overseas, we have successfully concluded cases with prosecutions being undertaken by the Police. We have been commended on a number occasions on the way the evidence was placed before prosecutors.

Our investigators work with lawyers and specialist insurance companies in order to successfully identify and trace valuable stolen items.

Today, we are all open to fraud. None of us are exempt. Our approach to the investigation of fraud is to keep it confidential and to keep it simple. Without causing alarm, we can discreetly investigate the circumstances and any individuals who may be suspected of the crime. We can plainly explain what has been discovered and give advice on what course of action to adopt.

Inactivity makes matters worse and action may have to be quickly taken to prevent loss or further loss. It may be necessary to report the matter to the appropriate authority for prosecution or to deal with the matter through the civil recourse. Whatever the outcome, we can assist you in making the right decisions in your best interests
